

Adam Mugliston

Barrister

Overview

Adam joined Chambers as a tenant in 2009 after successful completion of a broad common-law pupillage and now specialises in civil law.

Adam has a wide practice in civil law including claimant and defence work, both in court and through a busy paper practice – providing pleadings and advice. His civil practice predominantly covers personal injury (from RTA Protocol to Multi-track claims), Credit Hire, RTA fraud, public liability, employers liability, occupiers liability contract claims, landlord and tenant, insolvency and costs work - all areas in which Adam regularly receives repeat instructions.

Adam has developed considerable experience in representing employees, Trade Unions and employers in tribunals across England, Wales and Scotland as well as the Employment Appeal Tribunal. He also undertakes advisory work and assists with alternative forms of dispute resolution. Particular areas of expertise include discrimination, unfair dismissal, whistle-blowing, TUPE, working time, and redundancy. Adam regularly appears in multi-week tribunal hearings as well as claims on behalf of multiple claimants.
